An Open Letter to President-elect Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo

Mrs. President,

Firstly, on behalf of the Consumer and Oil Price Watch, congratulations on your election. Because it was a close fight, the opposition may contest your proclamation. While they have the constitutional right to do so, we hope that they will use the proper venue, the Presidential Electoral Tribunal, to air their protest. This will allow our country and our people to move forward.

Now, that you, Mrs. President, have won a mandate to govern, may we appeal to you to hit the ground running with all the political will you can muster and immediately implement your economic reforms agenda with particular focus on:

1. Raising funds to ease the budget deficit. In this connection, we strongly urge you to continue your crackdown on graft and corruption in government and the efficient collection of taxes.
2. Restoration of investor confidence. Foreign and local investors must be assured of a level playing field where pre-set rules are followed and not changed midstream.

Furthermore, we can no longer simply pay lip service to poverty alleviation. Your leadership must demonstrate and convince our people, especially the marginalized sector, that the government is working for them and taking care of their needs.

3. Creation of jobs particularly in the IT and agricultural sectors must be prioritized.
4. Relevant technical and vocational education curricula must be implemented.
5. Student loans with long term payback schemes for higher vocational and technical courses must be encouraged.
6. Secularized pricing must continue to balance the increasing prices of goods.

THE BEST AND THE BRIGHTEST

We urge you to gather only the best and the brightest to help you implement your program of government. We have no doubt you will place a premium on competence and integrity as criteria. Without being presumptuous, may we suggest the following:

1. For continuity of policy and performance, we recommend the retention of your economic team - Trade and Industry Secretary Cesar Purisima, Agriculture Secretary Luis Lorenza, Energy Secretary Vicente Perez, Economic Planning Secretary Romeo Neri, Budget and Management Secretary Enilda Boncodin, Labor Secretary Patricia Santos Tamas.
2. We recommend the retention of Guillermo Parayno at the Bureau of Internal Revenue and Antonio Bernards at the Bureau of Customs.
3. Since the DOF, BIR, and Customs are sensitive positions, we recommend former Finance Secretary Jose Isidro Canucha.
4. For a highly sensitive area as the Department of Public Works and Highways, where government funds are utilized, we recommend that Boyan Fernando be appointed as DPWH Secretary. He has the credibility to call on non-government organizations to help him check graft, especially in the implementation of pork barrel projects.

Finally, we pray that you be guided by love of country and empathy for our fellowmen. At no time in our nation's history have our problems been so enormous. We are optimistic that you will face up to these challenges.

Pamatong recants but cops say they have goods on him

By TJ Baggayon

THE WHISPER network inside the Philippine National Police (PNP) has recanted its earlier claim that Pamatong, who confessed to his role in the shooting of Senator Benigno Aquino Jr., was a member of the PNP. The PNP, however, says it has evidence to prove that Pamatong is a member of the PNP.

A Philippine Army official yesterday said the highest-ranking PNP official who had been in the PNP had belonged to the PNP. The official, however, did not say who the official was.

Maryo J: Focus on making films for world market

By RYCCA Torsion
Contributor

DIRECTOR Maryo J. de los Reyes thinks the Filipino film industry should focus on making films to be the international market.

Plus, we should start calling what is usually Filipino, and De los Reyes, who directed "Maguy" and "Kadula" both in the upcoming Manila Film Festival.

"We should start looking for good scripts, criticizing Filipino culture and I think the best movie in Filipino language," he said. "Elements happened to these prize-winning scripts in the yearly festival awarded. They are good sources of materials."

"Probably already come about five materials and they are discarded by a director who becomes so obsessed with them that he starts producing the materials in international producers. That's what I did in 'Maguy'." The story he fantasized as I didn't stop and I brought the right producer."

Second, he's about time local film festivals and showcasing and submit films, he said.

"The idea that whole your mind is on either commercial films but who should they help but look at it as an only serious film festival? We have to show that all films in this festival of us want to go international."

For the record, "Maguy" was named one of the films. Manila Film Festival four years ago. It was chosen No. 12 in a festival that lasted in two weeks.

De los Reyes depicted the progression of problems in solving the circumstances but at the expense of quality. He said investors in this included, his intention found someone else to carry. "Maguy" took all of a year to get noticed internationally and was a passenger in the industry," he pointed out.

"Maguy" has won awards and awards here and abroad and a festival in some international festivals until November. In that, it has won the grand prize from the international jury at the Berlin International Film Festival and in the festival's film festival in Rome. It has garnered awards at all Philippine and international awards.

De los Reyes made a surprisingly effective entry out of action star Brian Pardo in "Maguy," but the director was at the best in "The Making," a moving love story simply said.

"I had I have just started to film," and De los Reyes, who long ago moved out among the crowd of filmmakers with his own film studio, the "High School Girls No. 1," "The Other Woman" and "Dagang Dagang," among others. "These were quite of my learning period. They taught me how to handle different genres and so called female films. I feel that I have learned a little bit and now my things is a better perspective."

"I guess he is not that convincing of age, then I can do film with more confidence and become to maturity and selfless according to my own belief."

De los Reyes is a 21-year-old student when he made up the script of "Maguy." Upon reading it, he said that whether this script was the content or not, he would make a film out of it.

He said "Maguy" is a 20 shooting days with a budget of a little more than $100,000. The director in foreign film industry was awarded that a Filipino can make an estimated film for a little over half a million dollars and in 20 shooting days.

"I told them more Filipino/Manila is really made a film in seven shooting days, and they were blown," he insisted. "I told give me $1 million and I will give you two or three more Maguy's."

Maguy is Korea.

When told that Filipino don't always capture Philippine films that receive good returns abroad, he bluntly said, "A producer is never disappointed in his own country and to that one national audience. You don't realize how good your countryman is and he is the most honest abroad."

When he brought "Maguy" to the Pacific Film Festival in Korea, he was Maguy's first foreign sale. The director knew that he had won. "They have a vibrant film industry in Korea," he said. "They are taking up the challenge of being in the market, and after the screening, they made the film director I was surprised to be being invited and asked to sign autographs until I was in Korea."

After working in many films and engaging in designing with film directors and producers all over the world, he is convinced that the only way the Filipino film industry can be saved is by hitting the international market. He cites the case of Korea, Thailand and how vibrant film on exhibited all over the world.

"They have an intention that the only way to hit the international market is by doing a complete movie or creating a romance between the city and power," he said. "I saw the powerful love story between a British and a Korean, and without a single Korean dance in it. It was a very tender love story something was created person. It wasn't an actual film. It was a good love story based on reality."

Sacrifices

And the filmmaker "Maguy" was named for its message. There is a certain intention there and behind that one director who can say, it talks about goodness, faith, selfless love and dedication to humanity. It makes you believe man is basically good. The power of "Maguy" is that it is a tribute to humanity."

After doing all the things he wants to do, De los Reyes, who has been in the business for 20 years, will probably enter in an art form he chose to build in Korea, where artists in film, theater, dance and music can get together to exchange ideas.

His advice to young filmmakers "What is all kinds of films, from Jackie Chan to David Laing. There are many and different. Encourage themselves with people who love film. Don't be in a hurry to make money. When you produce in your art and that directing, producers have to look for money. It will come to you, but can't be a good filmmaker concept."

DE LOS REYES

PLUS, MORE, De los Reyes proposes 'The Servant' for a movie in 'Maguy'.

Satellite city's IT image finds soul in arts, environment-friendly policies

By Tessa R. Salazar

EASTWOOD City, the IT and lifestyle hub in Libis, Quezon City, is learning how to "chill out" in its own unique way.

This IT hub, where half of Metro Manila's call centers are "hired and insured," is just multiplying from its cyber image into being an, adding a soul and a more human face to its commercial developments.

For the past few months, it has been seen, being seen by visual artists, and has become a hot spot for artist-construction efforts.

The 11-hectare satellite city that features bars, movie theaters, and various other "cooling holes" in Libis, will house 19 residential towers, which would eventually be home to 5,000 families. 80 of the towers have already been sold out and are now operational.

Pet-friendly

Eastwood has made history as the first satellite city to encourage its residents to support local establishments. This hub has openly declared itself as "pet friendly." Almost 80 percent of commercial establishments in Eastwood are open to pets, except at churches, government and some fine-dining restaurants.

"We are just walking with their history in the animal state. We have encouraged people to walk, go out and walk their pets, but we also advise them to take their pets home by 6 pm, because business normally ends the environment goes by 6 pm," said the executive director of the city, Mr. Rolando Bana, president of the Eastwood City Development Corporation (ECDC).

ECDC is engaged by Eastwood to manage and market Eastwood City and to oversee commercial development.

Art support

Bana stresses that the sector also has the responsibility to show the future, and serve their pet while using the facilities.

Eastwood has also openly supported the arts—judgment and after sales.

For instance, it has sponsored the "Open House" of the Eastwood Mixed-Use Development of Colorful Philippines.

Colorful Philippines is known for coming back from the prestigious cultural music school in Southland Hills, particularly Zamboanga young men, born to play traditional instruments.

Color's grandfather master best tradition in the Philippines.

One of Eastwood's big business move is

Call Artistic is devoted to the group as a symbolic support. All items from the festival will be donated to the children's hospital in the school in Zamboanga. Super kids being served over to the Eastwood management by the Zamboanga children are also being fed and are not.

Other advances

One advance supported by Eastwood is Rolando Bana's art club, which meets in the Home Center of the Eastwood every Tuesday. Eastwood decided to bring support artists with the hope that they would promote and establish their studios in Eastwood.

Another advance is the support for the local business. Filipino, more popularly known as the World Wildlife Fund Philippines (WWF-Philippines) partnered with Eastwood City on June 1 and drew over 70 partners for a painting festival supporting the conservation of endangered species—birds, reptiles, amphibians, and mammals, the whole world and the marine world.

It introduced the IT hub's big with "WWF animals: A Pet to Art and Nature," an on-the-go painting activity at the Eastwood City Plaza.

Bana says the paintings are now under the district level, supporters of the conservation efforts of the WWF-Philippines are and come to visit the painting and buy items.

Another business will be dedicated for the conservation of WWF.

The social objectives of Eastwood have it as a mission to Eastwood to support and cultural activities.

"We felt that, because of the stress and the intense pace of IT and the full services, we realize that people also need to reflect their culture via their schedules, and we need to give a sense of what they do," says Bana.

Eastwood has also supported a group selling organic products. At the Home Center are its assortment of organic products, which are sold at the Eastwood during weekends. On weekends the products are distributed to other EDC developments in the Metro area.

On equal footing

Eastwood takes on pet-friendly and children's pet on almost equal footing with its owners. Pet ownership has been seen here. With the initiative of WWF-Philippines and Rolando Bana, we realize the need to institutionalize this.

"We want pet owners to come and just let EASTWOOD's initiatives are symbolic support for arts and conservation efforts.

FOOD and beverage giant San Miguel Corp. (SMC) is seeking its rights in Malaysia as part of its aggressive overseas (local) expansion drive.

SMC president Ramon Ang said the company was specifically looking at selling beer and hard liquor in Johor, a Malaysian state next to the Singaporean border.

Ang said that he expected to break ground in the Malaysia-Singapore market "within the next one to three months."

Ang also declared plans to buy a 20-hectare property for a pos-manufacturing plant in Malaysia, but did not say whether the land would be used for alcoholic or non-alcoholic facilities.

He said the new operation SMC could secure a permit for its planned expansion in Malaysia.

Insiders around said that SMC was in the process of developing non-beer products in Indonesia and was also expanding its produced meat division to complement its existing brewery and packaging plant in that country.

SMC recently acquired majority control of its greenland meat partner PT Hareback Salsabilla.

It already produces beer through PT Delta Zebra, one of Indonesia's biggest breweries that SMC bought in 1993.

Ang separately said that for the first half, the company was expecting to post its net earnings by 30 percent over last year as it saw revenues (stable) higher by 15 percent in the six-month period compared with last year.

SMC generated P2.65 billion in net earnings from January to April last year with net sales hitting P72.1 billion during the period.

Sources said that this year, SMC was focusing on its Thailand and Vietnam investments and looking at the Indonesian and Chinese markets next.

SMC chair Eduardo Caparanga II had said earlier this year that a number of greenfielding activities in various countries in the Asia-Pacific region by the second

How to use elliptical trainers and rowers

ELLIPTICAL is such a common name for the machine at the cardio section of the gym. They are just stepping past bike, push-ups, and sit-ups. The machines are called elliptical because you feel like you're doing a combination of the two.
